NEW-YORK.

From Jamaica Papers, to the 27th October, received at the Office of
THE MERCANTILE ADVERTISER.

KINSTON, October 22.

In consequence of the statement published in our Friday's paper, respecting the Cartel that foundered on her passage from St. Domingo to this Island—we received the following on Saturday:

Spanish Town, October 19. 1798.

SIRS,

Seeing in the paper of this day an imperfect detail of the loss of the schooner Industry, Capt Dumas.—I was on board that vessel, and was conjointly with Mr. Castaingfoix, bearer of dispatches, undoubtedly very important, from General Toussaint L'Ouverture for lord Balcarres and Admiral Sir Hyde Parker—and I take the liberty of sending you a detail of that unhappy event, wishing to testify my gratitude to all those who helped me on this unfortunate occasion. I beg you to insert it in your next publication.

I am, &c. &c.
MONGIN.

"Messrs. Mongin and Castaingfoix left the Mole on the 11th of this month, in the Cartel schooner Industry, Capt. Dumas, to carry letters from General Toussaint L'Ouverture, commander in chief of St. Domingo to the governor and admiral, and had the misfortune to be cast away the 13th, at 8 o'clock in the morning, at about 24 miles from the east end of this island—After having remained six hours clinging to the bottom of the schooner, the canoe which had gone down with her, but whose fastening had been cut at the time of the catastrophe by Mr. Mongin's orders, came up again, and served, though very small, to save these two gentlemen, the captain, ten of the crew, and a servant—they landed (after having been 40 hours without eating or drinking) in the parish of St. Mary, at the property of John Scott, Esq. who rendered every service in his power—Messrs. Berrault, St. Maurice, and Thorigny, passengers, in the Cartel, not being able to support the fatigue had sunk before the canoe appeared—Mr. Mongin owes his life, it is said to his servant: The dispatches of these two gentlemen and all their effects were lost, being in bed when this unhappy event happened, they had scarcely time to get out of the cabin. Mr. Scott lent them clothes to proceed to Spanish Town, and his hon. the lieut. governor being informed of their arrival, sent persons to visit them, and gave the most precise orders to the keeper of the Cross Keys Tavern, that every attention and care, of which they stood so much in need of, should be rendered them. The care of his lordship extended even to the crew of the Cartel, who were lodged in the same tavern at the expence of government. After this, we hope, that none of those saved, will fall a victim to the consequences of this melancholy event."

JEREMIE.

PROCLAMATION.

The General of Brigade, Commandant in Chief of the forces of the French Republic in the southern department of St. Domingo.

Citizens,

This precious part of the Republic is now under the laws of the Republic.—Such is the benevolence of the author of nature for mankind, that even those whom an inconceivable blindness, or false speculations, have for a moment been deprived of the benefit of Liberty must give way sooner or later to its irresistible power, either by the caprice of events, or by the awaking of that innate inclination, which drags us towards this happiness.

The French Government founded on a true Philantrophy, and not upon the sanguinary phrenzy, and devastation (devastatrice) with which preverse men, have dared to brand [couvrir] a name so respectable and sacred, the French government, penetrated by philanthropic principles which form the base of its power, knows to pity Error, and to appreciate the circumstances which forced a great many of the French to submit for a time to a foreign yoke. Indulgent towards them, it is just with respect to the cultivators; it holds innocent these good and simple men, whom ignorance or fear armed against their own cause, and congratulates itself on seeing them enjoy to day the happiness that has been long since prepared for them. But the mercy which it has a right to exercise, and which constitutes the most beautiful of the prerogatives of a generous nation, stops itself before the Constitution.

In the name of the French Republic, in virtue of the powers granted me, by the agent of the Executive Directory, and conformably to the disposition of the proclamation of the general in chief, with regard to the evacuation of the ports in the west part of St. Domingo, I proclaim amnesty,

1st. To all the inhabitants of the town of Jeremie, and of all the quarter of Grande Anse who have not emigrated, who have never been in the pay of the king of England, and who were found on the quarter of Grande Anse on its evacuation.

2dly. To all the French who, being in the militia at the time the quarter was invaded by the enemy, have continued their service in it.

3dly. To all the cultivators, torn from cultivating to be enlisted. They may present themselves, with the greatest confidence, to the military commanders of the towns nearest the places where they are, and assure themselves of the protection, and the assistance of the Republic.

There shall be established a Commission charged with the hearing and reciting the declarations and the means of justification, which the inhabitants of other quarters of St. Domingo, who are in Grande Anse, and who are not comprised in the precise terms of the amnesty, shall furnish in writing; these pieces shall be remitted to me by the Commission, and I shall transmit them to the general of division, agent of the Executive Directory, who shall pronounce definitively on their validity.

In awaiting, citizens, the happy effect of the measures I have taken, to ensure the good order and safety of all, I admonish those who are not comprised in the amnesty, against all the fears with which evil-minded persons would with to inspire them.

Cultivators, be assiduous in your labor, it is by it you will preserve to yourselves that liberty which I bring you, in the name of nature and the French Republic.

Reject all those insinuations which would tend to turn you away from the duties of a citizen. You have no longer to fight for your rights—we have conquered them for you: It remains for you to prove that you are worthy of them; and you will prove it by your wisdom, your activity in labor, and your generosity to those of whom you had the greatest reason to complain.

The present proclamation shall be printed, published and stuck up at Jeremie, and in all the other communes of Grand Anse.

At Jeremie, the 8th Fructidor [25th August] 6th year of the French Republic, one and indivisible.

A. RIGAUD.

PORT REPUBLICAN,
(ci-devant Port-au Prince) 22d Aug. 1798.

On the 15th inst. three Cartels arrived here from Jeremie, with 260 passengers of different sexes and different colors on board, who, on their landing were conducted without insult or reproach, to the Guard House and office of Justice.

On the morrow their effects were landed, and escorted under a strong and safe guard, to the same place, there was observed towards these prisoners, with regard to their effects, that degree of foresight and humanity, due on one side, to their misfortune, and on the other, to the safety of the Republic.

The General in chief was absent—His return made hope again dawn in the hearts it had forsaken. Harshness and his presence were never allied—Thus his first care was to cause to be brought before him the women, children and cultivators.

He began by pointing out to them the evils and dangers to which they had exposed themselves, in leaving their country at the moment of its most brilliant triumphs, and at the approach of a stable organization, to follow an enemy, perfidious, to whom crimes did not even give the trouble of reflection, and who shewed to the misfortunes of the French the sensibility of the Tygers. He afterwards depicted to them in so lively and affecting language, the laws and the morals of the Republic—that every person present was affected; he finished his paternal discourse in beseeching all to observe the laws, and to be united; as the price of their pardon which he granted, and their enlargement which he ordered.

He said to the women and children; the laws severe and just concerning emigration do not comprize you; return to your cares, and give an example of gentleness and obedience.

He said to the cultivators, the amnesty which by the authority of the agent, I have pronounced in my proclamation of 29th Floreal extends to you, return to the labors of the field, and be henceforth faithful to the Republic.

What then is this empire exercised among us by Toussaint L'Ouverture? Is he an angel descended from Heaven for the consolation and deliverance of the unhappy? Peace, indulgence and love: these are the traits by which he has always been known.

The swords and sceptres are reduced to dust, the thrones even are no more, but, the republic shall be, and with it justice, humanity and liberty.

With regard to the other persons, they have been remanded for more ample and particular information; for this purpose, the Commander in Chief and the Commissary of the Executive Directory to the Municipal body, are to confer on the business.

This delay is irksome to any person deprived of liberty, but the interest of the Republic requires this measure. She has so often been threatened with plots, and anti-revolutionary movements, that the consideration of her safety and of her preservation, has made her throw away these feelings of humanity and sensibility, which the feelings of another excite in feeling hearts.

The destiny of this great Isle is considerably changed.—Scarcely has a pacifying and a warlike agent put his foot on the banks, haunted by all kinds of evils, but the mistaken French, adjuring their mistakes and errors, flock from all sides to throw themselves into his arms, to the discretion of his justice and his goodness; the enemy hastens to quit the positions of which he was master, and an admirable organization springs out of chaos and confusion, and spreads through all the veins of the Colony its benign influence.

The Republic enlightens by its justice, the beguiled world, by its compassion captivates the grateful French. It is in the heart of the free man, where the altar of clemency is fixed.

Dublin Sept. 27.

The atrocities perpetrating every night by that nefarious villian, Holt, and his gang, exceeded every thing that can be supposed to occur in any country boasting of civilization. There is not one night for sometime past, that has not been marked by such outrages as would disgrace even Cherokees. The poor peasantry are now become the victims of those ferocious and sanguinary miscreants. The night before last, five poor men of this description, on the ends of Tenode, near Blessington, were plundered of their little all, by a party of those blood stained raparees, or, as the modern phrase is for such marauders—United Irishmen.

 To-morrow there will be Charity Sermons at Christ Church and St. Peters, for the poor of said Churches.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Jefferson, dated Paris, July 31, 1788,—Taken from the National Gazette, publiſhed by Philip Freneau, September 29, 1792.

"I ſincerely rejoice at the acceptance of our new Conſtitution, by nine States. It is a good canvaſs, on which ſome ſtrokes only want retouching. What theſe are, I think are ſufficiently manifeſted by the general voice from north to ſouth, which calls for a Bill of Rights."

"A declaration that the Federal Government will never reſtrain the preſſes from printing any thing they pleaſe, will not take away the liability of the printers for falſe facts printed. The declaration that religious faith ſhall be unpuniſhed, does not give impunity to criminal acts dictated by religious error."

Extract of another letter from the ſame gentleman, dated Paris, Auguſt 28, to be found in the ſame paper.

"I muſt now ſay a word on the declaration of rights, which you have been ſo good as to ſend me. I like it as far as it goes; but I ſhould have been for going further, for inſtance, the following alterations and additions would have pleaſed me

"Art. 4. The people ſhall not be deprived or abridged of their rights to ſpeak, to write, or otherwiſe to publiſh any thing, but falſe facts, affecting injuriouſly, the life, liberty, property, or reputation of others, or affecting the peace of the confederacy with foreign nations."

1ſt Quere. If ſcandal and malice being added to falſhood, exempt a tranſaction from the legiſlative power of Congreſs, which, if it were falſe alone, by the admiſſion of Mr. Jefferſon, would be ſubject to that power?

2d Quere. By what variation in principles has it come to paſs, that a ſenſe anticipated by Mr. Jefferſon, before the amendment concerning the freedom of the preſs, and of religion; and afterwards again with that amendment before him, confirmed as the true ſenſe, when adopted by Congreſs, is to be conſidered as unconſtitutional by that gentleman and his friends?

COMMUNICATIONS.

MR. FENNO,

LAST autumn in travelling through part of Virginia I frequently entered into converſation with gentlemen whom I occaſionally met at the public houſes, on the ſubject of the Alien and Sedition Laws, and particularly when from their dialect I diſcovered them to be foreigners. I generally obſerved to them, I am ſorry to hear you are ſo greatly alarmed at the late alien law of the Union—Alarmed (was their invariable anſwer) no ſuch thing, you are totally miſtaken; we are under no apprehenſion from its operation—We have truly much reaſon to complain of ſtate laws and ſtate tribunals, but depend upon the fact, 'tis the Virginians alone who complain of the alien laws. Now Mr. Printer, I deſire that ſome of your wiſeacres will account for this enigma.

A STRANGER.

ONLY AN ELECTION TRICK.

However unwilling the democratic faction may be to admit any circumſtance that tends to diſcloſe the intereſted views of thoſe whoſe lips conſtantly dwell upon patriotiſm, whoſe amor patriæ centers in ſelf, it is no leſs a fact, that on various occaſions they are compelled to have recourſe to perſons whom they cannot imitate, to ſupport their characters as they are; i. e. they are neceſſitated to borrow the garb of virtue to conceal their own vicious deformity. To this cauſe and not to the united ſuffrages of his fellow-citizens, are we to impute the ſucceſsful termination of a late election in a county not fifty miles from Philadelphia, in favor of a candidate whoſe duplicity ſwerved many well intentioned perſons from their determined purpoſe. A few weeks preceeding the election, at a time when the genius of Columbia had called upon her ſons to reſiſt oppreſſion offered from abroad, and to cruſh a growing faction at home—this diſciple of Gallatin, knowing that a majority of the electors were with adminiſtration, even to their lives—artfully inſinuated that he had juſt (then) returned from an interview with the Preſident of the United States, at which he had tendered his ſervice, to act in any rank he might be thought deſerving of, and that his name was actually placed on the records of the Secretary at War. But fearing leaſt this would not fully ſupport his pretenſions to patriotiſm and not truſting to his uſual trumpeter, (a democratic magiſtrate, who, if I miſtake not, is from the turbulent nation) he boldly declared that during the American revolution, he was intruſted with a command and ſtation, which placed it in his power, to have forever diſconcerted our meaſures, to have buried our brighteſt hopes in everlaſting night! Can it be, that he whoſe wiſdom and rectitude were ſuperior to every aſſault of fortune—Can it be, that Waſhington the great, the good, would truſt an individual with the holding of a balance, the niceſt turn of which would have decided the fate of America and poſterity? Say, ye elder Sons of Liberty—ye whoſe breaſts never cheriſhed one traiterous idea, can this be ſo?

But mark, the election over and the candidate having thus ſeated himſelf in a chair of State; his friends ſay it was only an election trick—he has not ſeen the Preſident, nor would he take the trouble to aſk any thing of him—Perhaps his latter aſſertion may be found to be as groundleſs as his friends now ſay the firſt is falſe.

But on examination it will be found that he has made application for a military employment—Without preſuming to dictate, it might not be amiſs to ſearch into the real motives of a man whoſe political opinion has long run counter to the wiſe meaſures of adminiſtration—Whoſe individual opinion may be proven to be unfriendly to the Preſident und the Commander in Chief—and whoſe public confeſſion now declares, that he yet retains in idea where and when he might (Judas like) have betrayed our country's ſaviour with a kiſs.

S.

To the FREEMEN of Philadelphia County.

FELLOW-CITIZENS,

ON Friday next, the 21ſt inſtant, you will again be called to the exerciſe of a moſt important and intereſting privilege, for the purpoſe of chooſing a perſon to repreſent you in the State Legiſlature, in the room and ſtead of John Huſton, Eſq. who has reſigned. It is at all times highly eſſential, that you ſhould examine with candour and patriotiſm the qualifications of thoſe men who ſolicit your ſuffrages for ſtations of truſt and reſponſibility:—at preſent, however, when the honor and proſperity of our common country are at ſtake, it is peculiarly incumbent on you, as free and enlightened citizens, to diſcriminate, with jealous circumſpection, the pretended from the real friends of the government. On a ſubject of ſuch immenſe moment, then, I truſt you will liſten to me with ſerious and profitable attention.

The active enemies of the Federal government, who leave no effort of oppoſition untried however often foiled, are determined, at the enſuing ſpecial election, to ſupport, with their votes, the diſgraced and contemptible GEORGE LOGAN; a man whoſe recent conduct you are all convinced deſerved, as it has received, the unqualified cenſure of every honeſt American; and who, by a long ſeries of oppoſition to government, has proved his inveteracy to all legitimate authority. Citizens of Pennſylvania, you live in the centre of political information—you cannot be ignorant of the unwarrantable and preſumptuous interference of this man—you cannot view, but with indignation and contempt, this feeble inſect crawling from nothingneſs, and aſpiring to the confidence of his country, without a particle of merit, or a ſingle act of ſervice to recommend him—Your known diſcernment, your active patriotiſm, your love of public virtue, your reſpect for the laws, all conſpire to render him deſervedly odious in your eſtimation.

Even had this man, in the aſſumption of a diplomatic character, effected an actual reconciliation, the unwarrantableneſs of his authority, the arrogance of the undertaking, would deſerve your ſevereſt reprobation; and the terms of pacification, however favorable, coming through that dirty and illegal channel, would be rejected by a people free and independent.—France having no right to preſcribe the qualifications of our miniſters, we would concede it to her, if we appeared the leaſt thankful for the exertions of this impoſter. But he has done nothing towards a reconciliation, even if we were inclined to avail ourſelves of his embaſſy—He has viſited France and returned—the ſame has been done with as much effect, by many of our captains of veſſels and ſeamen.

Under theſe conſiderations, fellow-citizens, how does your own reflection impell you to act? To elect him, will be to ſanction his infamous preſumption—it will be a ſtain on our ſtate—a reproach to the general government of the United States, and a temptation to others to follow his footſteps. Let me conjure you, then, as you love order, as you love freedom and independence—as you eſteem the preſent happy government, reſiſt with unanimity and ſpirit, the unreal pretenſions of this candidate for your ſuffrages.—I recommend to you, BENJAMIN CHEW, jr. a gentleman, in every reſpect capable of repreſenting you with juſtice and credit.

A Fellow-Citizen.

December 15.

A FACT.

One of the M'Leans, who a few months ago rendered himſelf conſpicuous in Canada by his jacobinical conduct, has made his eſcape to one of thoſe weſtern counties of Pennſylvania long ſince famous for harbouring Diſturbers of public Tranquility.

S.

EVERY editor of a news-paper accompanies his propoſals to publiſh it, with a promiſe to be impartial. This was at firſt underſtood to imply "being open to all parties." The public were however early denied a latitude ſo great as this. Impartiality is not violated, it is now conceived, if facts are juſtly ſtated, and no neceſſary information withheld, though admiſſion ſhould be refuſed to all political ſentiments oppoſed to thoſe which the editor may eſpouſe—Conſidered even in this reſtricted ſenſe, how many breaches of impartiality appear; Claypoole's paper of yeſterday exhibits a glaring inſtance of this. Let any one turn to it, who was preſent at the debate on the reſolution for printing and diſtributing copies of the Alien and Sedition laws, and read that debate as given by him and he will be ſtruck with the juſtneſs of this charge. The ſpeech of Mr. Gallatin is detailed in the fulleſt manner and ſeems to have greater force than it really poſſeſſed from being refined in print. While the reply made by Mr. Harper, which diſplayed promptneſs of wit, fertility of genius, and correctneſs of judgment, is curtailed and mutilated ſo that it poſſeſſes none of the manly features which produced approbation and delight in thoſe who heard it.

Friday, Dec. 14.

Extract from a Coup d'oeil over the ſituation of Europe, contained in the Spectateur du Nord, a German periodical work, for the month of Auguſt 1798.

It was in the plans of the Directory that the Americans ſhould pay alſo their tribute; but thanks to their ſagacity, and above all to their ſituation, they have hitherto known how to diſappoint theſe calculations; they have even been able to obtain words of ſweetneſs and of peace, in place of that imperious and menacing language, which, a few months ſince, the Directory held towards them. You have ſeen the ſingular correſpondence of the miniſter of foreign relations, with the envoy of America, who remained at Paris after the departure of his colleagues. You have admired the able and honeſt politics of that miniſter who, being unwilling to admit the Envoys inveſted with a character and furniſhed with ample powers, obſtinately perſiſts in recognizing thoſe powers and that character in an Envoy who no longer acknowledges them himſelf.

You will have admired that delicate and ſcrupulous policy, which no longer wiſhes Mr. Gerry to return to the preliminary meaſure of a loan, the idea of which never entered into the pure views of the Directory. You will have admired the frank and ſimple policy of citizen Talleyrand, who wiſhes to negociate with all his might, when there are no longer negociators; who ſpeaks of the alienation of the Directory, when for three years the Directory has abuſed the alienation of the Americans; who wiſhes, in fine, to uſe all means of avoiding a rupture, and of preſerving peace, when France for five years has made war upon America. It would be difficult, ſays Mr. Gerry in his letter to the miniſter, to find in the hiſtory of civilized nations, any examples approaching in cruelty to the depredations, the outrages, and the ſanguinary atrocities, exerciſed by the French upon the commerce and the citizens of the United States. It is after ſuch a war, that they inſult the patience of the Americans, by reproaching them with their alienation, and to whom they preſume they have rendered ample juſtice, by publiſhing a tardy arrete againſt theſe cruel and plundering corſairs, of whom they have ſo long complained.

The vigorous meaſures taken by the United States, will, without doubt, contribute more to the protection of their commerce, than the phraſes of citizen Talleyrand and the arrête of the Directory. But both theſe laſt have only labored in their vocation, while endeavoring to diſarm thoſe enemies they could not debauch; while laboring to avoid a war which may hurt, and which cannot enrich them; while ſeeking to heap on the Americans, all the odium of a rupture, and to fortify amongſt them the diſorganizing party which menaces their repoſe.

You may qualify as you pleaſe the conduct of the Directory towards the United States. It will be eaſily judged of by all ſenſible men, and I perceive that it has been appreciated juſtly by even thoſe who moſt favor the principles of the French government.

At London, the moſt popular Journals of the oppoſition, are, ſome of them merry with the virtues of the directory, others loud in reprobation of the baſeneſs and corruption of that government. They alſo give into ſuſpicions of the honeſty of the miniſter Talleyrand, and they are ſcandalized at this Republican adopter of the duplicity of the ancient court. On the whole, I find that the friends of democracy, the few remaining men of truth and decency amongſt them recover a little from their enthuſiaſm for the French Revolutionizers, *the greateſt enemies of the real liberty and independence of nations. If ſuch be the language of thoſe friends of liberty the leaſt ſuſpected of demagogy, in England, where as yet they have not known French liberty but by others' experience; what think, muſt be the thoughts of the friends of real liberty in Holland, in Italy, in Switzerland, and in America.

Extract of a letter from Liſbon, dated October 20th, 1798.

"The Emperor of Ruſſia has ſent 60,000 men to the aſſiſtance of Auſtria againſt France—30,000 have already arrived in the Tyrol, and the remainder are on their march.

"A ſecret expedition, under the command of General Stuart, conſiſting of 8000 men, are ſoon to ſail from hence and Gibraltar, ſuppoſed for the Mediterranean."

Yeſterday morning, Lieut. Gen. WASHINGTON left this city, on his journey to Mount Vernon, Virginia. The General was acompanied by his Secretary, COL. LEAR.

Yeſterday in the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this State, the committee appointed, reported the from of a reſpectful addreſs to the Preſident of the United States, which was made the order for Thurſday next

The Brig Maria, Sheerer, from Charleſton to this port, was wrecked on the night of Sunday laſt, near Indian river, and ſix paſſengers unfortunately periſhed. We have not been able to learn the names of the paſſengers, or farther particulars.

FRENCH ACCOUNT

Of an engagement, between the Mediterranean Fleets.

"On board Le Guillaume Tell,
"Malta, Auguſt 28.

"The Engliſh attacked us in the anchorage of Bequieres, on the 14 of Auguſt about ſix in the evening; and of thirteen ſhips and four frigates, which compoſed our force, 11 ſhips & 2 frigates, have remained on the ſcene of action. But had it not been for the blowing up of the L'Orient, our bravery compenſating our deficiency in numbers and tactics, would have been ſufficient to find the Engliſh along with ourſelves, in one common overthrow. The enemy have only ſix ſhips remaining in a ſervicable condition. I aſſure you that never has there been a more dreadful combat. We were within leſs than piſtol ſhot of each other.

"Our fleet conſiſted of 13 ſhips, which were moored in a line at the diſtance of two thirds of a cable from each other, in the Roads of Bequieres. We had no conception that we ſhould be attacked on the land ſide, conſidering the ſmall ſpace between us and the banks along the ſhore; but the Engliſh ſhot along in this direction in ſo maſterly a manner, that only their firſt ſhip touched the ground; and the reſt paſſed in two lines on the ſtarboard and larboard ſides of our headmoſt veſſels. Our line was thus between two fires from the van to the L'Orient, which was in the centre.

"The ſuperb ſhip L'Orient took fire at ten o'clock. She was attacked ſo cloſely, that it was the wadding of the Engliſh ſhips which ſet her on fire, and the ſailors fought each other with their rammers. It was impoſſible to extinguiſh the flames. It was a terrible, but melancholy ſpectacle to ſee this veſſel fighting to the laſt extremity, though with the certain proſpect of deſtruction.—About midnight ſhe blew up. Our veſſels were then thrown into diſorder—every one cut their cables to eſcape the wreck.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.
JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years past been in the southern States, has had the effrontery to draw several Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Esq. Secretary of State, and myself, and by that means has defrauded a number of persons of their money, deceiving them by an exhibition of letters and papers with the names affixed of divers public characters and reputable merchants highly recommendatory of said Shaeffer; to one of these papers I find my name subscribed, but I do not know the man; these are villainous forgeries! To prevent further imposition, I have to request the printers of Newspapers in the United States to publish this for the benefit of their fellow-citizens. SAMUEL MEREDITH,
Treasurer of the United States
Trenton, New-Jersey, October 24, 1798. }
